Grant Returns To Appomattox Court House

Thursday and Friday of last week were busy days at Appomattox Court House National Historical Park as General U. S. Grant returned to reminisce, Grant is portrayed by Joe Early, a character actor for the children's program "Come Along". Early also plays several other historic characters including Teddy Roosevelt, Robert E. Lee, and Benjamin Franklin. The program will be shown first on WABC-TV in New York and then possibly nationwide.

Filming took place in and around the McLean House as pictured above. Various parts of the village were also used in filming the program. The content of the program centers upon the life of Grant rather than strictly on his part in the surrender of 1865. Several of the scenes in the village related to his early life, his love for horses, and his unusual personality. Maintenancemen Henry Chernault provided his horse "Pat-ches" for a number of scenes as Grant walked and rode through the village.

Scenes in the McLean House were concerned with what he remembered about the surrender conference and with the reading of the surrender terms and Lee's letter of acceptance. Of particular interest to the park staff was Earley's close likeness to General Grant and his detailed knowledge of the general. Three hours were needed each day for Earley to create the likeness of Grant through make-up.

Although the program is designed as a children's program it may be shown as a 30 minute special sometime. Last year Earley portrayed both Lee and Grant at Appomattox for the TV station WTOP in Washington. We hope you all have an opportunity to view this interesting presentation soon.

Nostalgic era fades:

OLD LOGGING RAILROADS REACH END OF LINE

By Vernor Schenck

The nation's old logging railroads, those colorful forest denizens that carried most of the wood for the nation's homes, newspapers, magazines and even household tissues for more than a century, are clickety-clacking down a siding called memory lane.

Their rusting rails are on an economic downgrade that has grown steeper each year since the World War II era.

In a few of the nation's timbered areas the exciting old steam locomotives have been replaced by streamlined diesels in recent years, but changing economics have slowly shunted even these onto sidetracks in growing numbers. The higher cost of growing new crops of timber, coupled with the competition from faster and more versatile trucks, have speeded the already obvious handwriting on the wall.

At one time Georgia-Pacific, a prime example among major timber growers, operated 10 such railroads into the woods of Appalachia, the Southland, California and Oregon. Today only one is left.

Few logging railroads, even those that "moonlighted" as common carriers, remain in the nation, a recent survey reveals.

Here and there some oldtimers still huff and puff over old timbered trestles carrying tourists for a price along twisting roadbeds already lined by the new crop of trees. Many Shay and other picturesque old steam locomotives, flatcars and cabooses stand in city parks and rail museums. Children clamber over their cold boilers and, periodically, sentimentalists apply another cost of paint.

Some of the old logging railroads operated by Georgia-Pacific hold names that ring like the driver's sledge on the rail spikes ... the Brimstone in Tennessee and West Virginia, the Elk River Coal & Lumber line in Georgia, the Feather River Railway in California's Sierra mountains, the Oregon, Pacific & Eastern in Oregon, the Natchez, Urania & Ruston in Louisiana and the Ashley, Drew & Northern in Arkansas. Of these, only the A.D.&N. is left in action, a "Sunset carrier hauling its cars behind big, thrumming diesel engines.

But somehow it's not the same. The tracks don't vibrate the same way, the belly doesn't tighten and tingle at the sight of the big driving wheels and the billowing smoke and steam as the monster passes. And the diesel's whistle is a poor imitation of the old mellow, full-fluted yell of steam that echoed through the valleys and far down the line, tugging at memories.

More economic the modern trucks may be, and vastly changed are the ways of the woods, but in railroad lovers' hearts there's a nagging feeling that a high price has been paid to keep up with the times.

Bark Beetles In Epidemic Stage

The infestation of Southern Pine Bark Beetles in Central Piedmont Virginia is now in epidemic proportions and the potential loss in Amelia, Buckingham, Campbell, Charlotte, Cumberland, Appomattox, Lunenburg, Nottoway, and Prince Edward counties alone could reach one million dollars unless landowners act now.

SURVEY RESULTS

A recent extensive aerial survey in these counties show nearly 800 spots of pine timber, ranging from 5 trees to 25 acres, infested with bark beetles. On the ground inspections of the spots reveal that the problem is even more serious than the air survey indicates.

ECONOMIC LOSS

It is estimated that about 2,000 acres worth some $200,000 or more in stumpage value alone is being lost due to this insect pest. A total loss of wood could mean one and a half times the loss in wages that would be derived from cutting the wood and in transportation. This brings the value to nearly a half million dollars. The value of manufactured products that could be made from this wood would bring once again this amount. Thus this unmerciful insect is not just killing a tree, it is making a real dent in the pocketbook of the landowner, wood producer, transportation, and wage earner of over a million dollars.

PLAN OF ACTION

Much of this value can be salvaged if immediate action is taken to remove the dying trees which includes a buffer zone of live trees 100 feet wide all around the infested area. This buffer zone or "Safety Strip" will remove trees that harbor beetles which have not yet caused the trees to die.

The habits of the beetle are to attack trees which have been weakened from one cause or another. This means that over mature or "old age" timber is particularly susceptible to attack. Almost all pine trees were susceptible this year due to the weather. Research tells us that mild, wet winters and springs followed by a dry spell during the summer months greatly increases pine timber susceptibility to bark beetle attack. This happens to be the very conditions we have had this year.

It is estimated that 75 percent of the present damage is occurring in the older or larger sized timber. Large sawtimber is already one of the main needs in balancing our present growing stock and the little black beetle is reducing these volumes even more.

Although salvage will not eliminate the beetle, experience has shown that it does reduce the damage on immediately adjacent areas. Cutting also delays the buildup of the beetle population that may occur later in the season if unusually dry conditions are experienced. Should drought conditions continue and we have another mild winter the situation could become critical if continued salvage of infested trees is not carried out.

FAST BREEDERS

The beetle enters the tree and deposits its eggs in "S" shaped tunnels that it burrows inside the bark of the tree. The eggs develop into larvae, which will emerge from the tree as adult beetles in about 20 days. These new beetles seek out trees to start the life cycle over again. There are about five generations a year, thus a very rapid buildup is possible if weather conditions are favorable for its development.

THE TIME IS NOW

This pest is a very serious one in our forests and every timberland owner should be deeply concerned about its control. For positive identification or help in delineating areas to be cut please contact, without delay, the Virginia Division of Forestry, Box 386 Farmville, Virginia 23901 or your County Forester and Chief Forest Warden.

Will Sing At Mt. Obey

The "Trumpeteers" of Appomattox and the "Holiness Gospel Singers" of Pamplin will sing at Mount Obey Baptist Church on Sunday, October 29th at 7:30 p.m.

The public is cordially invited to attend.

Annual Income Questionnaires

All veterans and widows, with the exception of those persons born before 1900, who have been on the rolls for more than two years, and who receive nonservice-connected pension or death pension and parents who receive Dependency and Indemnity Compensation or Death Compensation will receive an income questionnaire with the VA check for Oct. which they should receive on or about November 1st.

Pension and death pension under both the "old" and "new" pension laws, and Dependency and Indemnity Compensation or Death Compensation for parents are subject to income limitations. The Veterans Administration checks on income each year by sending an income questionnaire to each individual who is receiving a check for one of these benefits.

Payees are reminded that the amount of income they report should be figured to the exact penny, so the Veterans Administration can place them in the proper income bracket. It is, also, suggested that very careful thought be given to the computation of the amount of income that is reported for 1973.

Failure to return the income questionnaire by January 15, 1973, will cause the Veterans Administration to stop the benefit check and create an overpayment against the person receiving the benefit. The Veterans Administration may then demand refund of money it paid for 1972.

If you receive an annual income questionnaire card, don't wait until the deadline to complete it. Do it right away.

Veterans and widows who draw benefit checks based on service-connected disabilities or deaths are not required to give an annual accounting of their income.

We would rather have one man or woman working with us than three merely working for us.

SEVENTH-DAY ADVENTIST
Rufus B. McDannel, Pastor
Lesson 4 for October 22-28.
Subject: Signs of Christ's Coming: Tribulation and the Gospel.
Scripture Text: "Yea, and all that live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution. But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived" 2 Tim. 3:12-13.

In last week's lesson we noted Christ's warning that deception in religion would be practiced until His coming. The other sign that Jesus stated twice was persecution. (Matt. 24:9,10 and 21,22.) Thus deception and persecution were given more emphasis by Jesus than any other signs in Matthew 24. While last week we studied Satan's use of deceit to prevent preparation for the Advent, this week we will first note his use of violence for the same purpose, Jesus noted deceit and persecution to be so certain a strategy of Satan that they actually constituted signs of Jesus' return.

In Matthew 24: these two devilish phenomena are presented together (9-11 and 21-24) They belong together. The devil is both a liar and a murderer, and he uses both of his traits against the waiting church of Jesus Christ. By contrast Jesus Christ is the 'True Witness' and the Lord of life.

Lesson Outline - Part 2. "From Olivet the Saviour beheld the storms about to fall upon the Apostolic church; and penetrating deeper into the future. His eye discerned the fierce, wasting tempests that would beat upon His followers in the coming ages of darkness and persecution. In a few brief utterances ... He foretold the portion which the rulers of this world would mete out to the church of God." The Great Controversy p. 39. Also read Matt. 24: whole chapter and Daniel 7: whole chapter telling of the "Papacy Roman Church" as it is called today. Part 3. Future Tribulations. Rev. 13; 15:17 "As the defenders of truth refuse to honor the Sunday - sabbath (in the final crisis) some of them will be thurst into prison, others exiled, some will be treated as slaves, to human wisdom all this seems impossible now; but as the restraining spirit of God is withdrawn from men ... "The heart can be very cruel when God's fear and love are removed." - The Great Controversy, page 608. Part 4. Preaching the Gospel. Matt 24:14 "And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come." Part 5. Universal Witness. Rev. 14:6. Matt. 24:14 "From door to door His servants are to proclaim the message of salvation. To every nation, kindred, tongue and people, the tidings of pardon through Christ are to be carried" Part. 6. "Impending Loud Cry." Rev. 18:1,4 "And after these things I saw another angel come down from heaven, having great power; and the earth was lightened with His glory". And I heard another voice from heaven saying, come out of her, my people that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues."

Sabbath School 10 a.m.
Worship Service 11:15 a.m.
Remember dear Friends, Brothers and Sisters of all denominations, are invited to visit with us and pray and commune together about God's great plan of Salvation for all people. May we all be ready to meet Him when He comes in His clouds of glory to take all His children home to live with Him forever and ever.
